Donetsk Hosts Regional Launch of Global Compact Initiative

Donetsk, 20 March, 2007 The UN Global Compact (GC) regional launch was conducted on Tuesday in Donetsk to invite Donetsk companies and agencies in voluntarily implementing the UN's "ten commandments" of corporate social responsibility (CSR). This event was supported by the Donetsk Chamber of Commerce, local authorities and System Capital Management representing the company that already has become GC member. The launch was attended by UN Resident Coordinator in Ukraine Mr. Francis O'DONNELL, Mr. Anatoliy BLYZNYUK, Head of Donetsk Oblast Council, Mr. Borys ADAMOV, Deputy Head of Donetsk Regional State Administration, Mr. Gennadiy TKACHENKO, Deputy Mayor of Donetsk, Mr. Gennadiy CHIZHIKOV, President of Donetsk Chamber of Commerce and Industry and more than 100 representatives of local businesses and media.

In his opening address Mr. O'DONNELL emphasized the importance of GC principles adoption for the development of the Ukrainian economy and awarded membership certificates to the CEO's of three new members of the initiative from Donetsk: Minimetallurgical Works ISTIL (Ukraine), Financial Industrial Group Altcom and Association of Non-Governmental Organisations "Social Economic Strategies and Partnerships". "Social benefits for the community delivered by businesses bring the benefits back to the business", stated Mr. O'DONNELL. "Labour aspect named as first in the CSR perception in Ukraine. This aspect has lots of room for the improvement and Donetsk companies can take this into account", stated the key note speaker of the event Ms. Severine DEBOOS, International Labour Organization Programme Coordinator in Central and Eastern Europe. "CSR is about going beyond the minimum legislation standards", she added. On behalf of the GC current members, SCM Director of International and Investor Relations Mr. Jock MENDOZA-WILSON presented how business can benefit from the corporate social responsibility. He also noted that well-governed companies pay less interest for investment loans, and attract the best staff.

Opening Dialogue with Media on Corporate Social Responsibility

Kyiv, 12 April, 2007, the UN House hosted the discussion with media on Corporate Social Responsibility: from charity towards sustainable development. The event was a part of a series of discussions which the United Nations in Ukraine is organizing with media representatives on the area of Corporate Social Responsibility. The first discussion was held in December 2006 on the topic "Is CSR newsworthy?"

The discussion was focused on the importance to distinguish CSR from charitable donations and raised issues about the general perception of CSR in Ukraine. The media representatives that attended the discussion shared their opinions on different issues including what does "socially responsible business" mean from media perspective, what are the reasons for business being more focused on charity than on sustainable development and what role could media play in helping the business go beyond charity and become more socially responsible.

As a result of discussion, all participants agreed to the following statements:

- 1) Charities are observed by businesses as a short-term investment, whereas the CSR actions take more strategic and longer term goals that are often neglected by the companies' general management;
- 2) On the legislative level the Government should support companies to be more responsible entities;
- 3) Media outlets' advertising and sales departments sway editorial opinions, while CSR-related materials are treated only as commercial PR stories;
- 4) Media in Ukraine should be more independent, a strong need for public service press and TV is observed. At the same time media should perform a "watchdog" function.
- 5) Being businesses themselves, media should act as socially responsible entities;

As a follow up to the media meeting the attendees were invited to participate in the Forum "CSR: from charity towards sustainable development" that took place on 17 April, 2007 at the Radisson SAS Hotel with the participation of leading Ukrainian and multinational businesses, Government, labour and civil society organizations.

Multi-Stakeholder Discussion on "Corporate Social Responsibility: from Charity Towards Sustainable Development"

Kyiv, 17 April, 2007 Multi-stakeholder discussion on "Corporate Social Responsibility: from charity towards sustainable development" was conducted on Tuesday, 17 April, 2007 in Kyiv at the Radisson SAS Hotel. The discussion was organized on the initiative of the GC network Ukraine members with the support of United Nations Global Compact team in Ukraine. The main objective of the discussion was to initiate a substantial dialogue between the main CSR players in Ukraine on the difference between charity and CSR and the external and internal reasons for businesses to emphasize predominantly on charity.

The forum has been made possible thanks to the financial support kindly provided by Volia, Group of Companies, Global Compact member. A key-note speaker of the forum was Mr. Christian Thommessen, Director of the Private Sector Division, United Nations Development Programme, Headquarters, New York. Panelists of the discussion were Mr. Oleg Opimakh, State Committee for Regulatory Policy and Entrepreneurship, Ms. Viktoriya Ruban, Ukrainian Mobile Communications, Ms. Nina Solomatina, Federation of Trade Unions Ms. Yuliya Begma, Center for Corporate Citizenship, Mr. Petro Kalyta, Ukrainian Association for Quality.

The discussion was focused on the importance to distinguish CSR from charitable donations and raised issues about the general perception of CSR globally and in Ukraine. An emphasis was placed on the understanding that CSR goes beyond charity and requires that a responsible company take into full account its impact on all stakeholders and on the environment when making decisions. This requires the company to balance the needs of all stakeholders with its need to make a profit and reward shareowners adequately.

The event gathered around 45 Global Compact members in Ukraine representing business, Government, Federation of Trade Unions, employers' associations, NGOs and media. The topic of the forum proved to be of high interest to the participants and encouraged vital discussion and constructive dialogue among the multi-stakeholders. As a result participants together with UN GC Team agreed on holding a series of discussions, covering most appealing topics or issues in connection to CSR and experience/knowledge exchange.

Mobile Operators and IOM Launch Counter Trafficking Toll-Free Hotline in Ukraine

Kyiv, April 25, 2007 The International Organization for Migration (IOM) Mission in Ukraine, a UN country team agency, and “Astelit” (life:) trademark), KyivStar GSM, and UMC, the three leading mobile operators in Ukraine has signed a Memorandum of Understanding to establish cooperation on preventing trafficking in human beings. For the first time in Ukraine, the mobile operators are joining forces with IOM to counter trafficking in human beings and raise awareness on protecting Ukrainians’ rights when working abroad. As a first step, the parties have initiated a toll-free counter-trafficking 527 short number, which is functioning with a non-commercial aim where all callers receive accurate information about the current realities and possible dangers that migrants could face outside of Ukraine.

”Well-known and respected mobile phone companies are now coming together, demonstrating social responsibility and partnership, thus setting an example for the business community at large. Foreign and Ukrainian business companies could help stop trafficking in human beings by raising awareness, public outreach and national ownership and support of the Ukrainian counter-trafficking response. We applaud these efforts” stated Mr. Jeffrey Labovitz, Coordinator for Ukraine Moldova and Belarus, an IOM Chief of Mission in Ukraine.

”This is a very important initiative for Ukraine. By signing this agreement today, the corporate social responsibility is not anymore a nice term referred by companies but it is taking real actions”, stated Ms. Ruken Tekes-Calikusu, UN Coordination Specialist. ”Also as a unique cooperation between three GSM operator competitors to overcome an important social and developmental challenge, this initiative deserves international recognition”, she added.
